

THE STRENGTH OF A MOTHER

DONATE TODAY!

Twenty-seven-year-old Adrienne is the only employee at a freezer business that sells cold drinks and charges cell phones throughout the school year. The hours are long, but Adrienne doesn't mind. Her motivation is caring for her two young children, "If I don't do it, no one is going to do it in my place. I must work so that I can offer my two children a brighter future." When Hope for Haiti gave the school a small loan to start the business and hire a full-time employee, little did we know what impact it would have on a mother in rural Haiti.

When Adrienne was younger, she dreamed of becoming a nurse. But after becoming pregnant she had to leave school and give up this dream to focus on her family. Because of the opportunity to work at the freezer business, she learned how to manage a budget, and now earns enough money to take care of her children. She never gave up and worked hard to overcome these challenges. This Mother's Day, join us in celebrating incredible Haitian mothers like Adrienne who, every day, are working to give their children a better future.
